SUBJECT

: Executive Officers Group Conference

1. This is to report briefly on the conference of the Executive Officers Group at Charlottesville, Virginia at the Federal Executive Institute on the 4th, 5th, and 6th of March.

2. As you had observed when you asked me to take your place at the conference, the program had little specific application to the Agency or my role in it, but I did find the material of interest in a personal sense. Also, as you know, the greatest benefit came from meeting the senior management officers of the Executive Branch. I shall not attempt to report in any detail on the substance of the conference, but would like to reflect three items of interest which were by-products. The first has to do with use of retirees as consultants. Personal discussions with Bernie Rosen and Leo Pellerzi, among others, supported the position taken by Alan Dean in the formal unit of the program that it was a desirable and effective technique to use retirees as consultants in an independent contractor arrangement; i.e., to buy a piece of work from them for a fixed price and avoid all of the complications of reemployment. I learned that we are not the only ones who have used retirees under such arrangements for such things as writing history. A second item of interest was an observation by Robert Froehlke that, in terms of quality and competence of its personnel, he rated this Agency tops and he always looked forward with pleasure to dealing with the Agency and its representatives on matters of common concern. At the luncheon table one day, during a conversation in which Frank Sherwood was attempting to review with the new Assistant Secretary for Administration and Management at HEW (Brady) and Alan Dean's Deputy at Transportation (Heffelfinger) the use of FEI and its philosophy in training executives, Sherwood went out of his way to comment on the quality of the management of this Agency. It was well nigh embarrassing to have to smile modestly while he said what he did.

3. As I have already indicated, many of the individual officers inquired of you and, in sending their regards, spoke most highly of you as friend and colleague. I should like to add my personal appreciation for having had the opportunity to attend.

Washington, D. C. 20036

Dear Mr. Cleaveland:

I am indeed sorry that I am unable to attend the Executive Officers Group conference at Charlottesville this weekend. Mr. Helms is tied up all this week with Congressional hearings and has requested that I stay home and keep store.

I appreciate being able to substitute Bob Wattles. He is our Assistant Deputy Director for Support. This is the directorate which handles all of the administrative matters of the Agency, and I am sure you will find him well equipped to participate. I know he will derive a great deal from the conference, and we are grateful for the opportunity to take part in it.

Sincerely,

SUBJ : Details of the Conference

The Fourth Conference for members of the Executive Officers Group will be held at the Federal Executive Institute in Charlottesville, Virginia. It will begin with a reception at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, March 4, in the Dominion Room Lobby, followed by dinner in the Rotunda Room. The conference will adjourn at approximately 4:45 p.m. on Saturday, March 6. Lodging has been arranged for Thursday and Friday nights only.

The attached Manual includes a conference program, background readings for the various sessions, and biographical information on resource persons. In addition to a bibliography, each section of readings contains a brief review of the material presented. This information, coupled with the Manual's introduction, should give participants a clear notion of the conference's rationale and the ground to be covered.

The Manual also contains a fact sheet and a brochure on the Federal Executive Institute.

Should you have any questions about the conference, please call me or Alex Silva of my staff.
